Layers As mentioned previously, Photoshop layers enable you to save and redraw an image with multiple layers. These layers can display on your computer screen, allowing the image to be redrawn, or they can also be hidden, allowing a different drawing to be created beneath it. Layers can also be merged together to create a composited layer that contains the work of several layers. Many layers are stacked, and all the images you apply to a single layer are applied to that layer. You can have a few or hundreds of layers in one image and can combine them to create one composite layer. For example, with a layered image you can use a high-key image for the sky and a low-key image for the rest of the image. The result would be a single layer that contains the two images' layers. Photoshop layers are indexed according to the layer order (from top to

will be able to be taught, recreated, and channeled, in some way, into the service of the greater good. But, it cannot be left to the random, chaotic, universal forces of market-driven action. It cannot be left to random, unpredictable, one-off decisions that cannot be easily replicated, changed, or even predicted in a time span that is meaningful. It cannot be left to randomness because a theocracy cannot be governed by the blind chaotic process of randomness. No, it must be ruled by the deliberate and reasoned application of collective wisdom. Because the wise know when to act, and when to abstain. They understand when to push, and when to pull back. They know when to take risks, and when to protect. But, only collective wisdom can give rise to a culture where economic scarcity will be managed, in a way that is useful to all of us, and in a way that is sustainable in the long-term. It is only in a culture where economic scarcity is valued, and painstakingly managed, that the free market mechanism will fulfill its manifest destiny. In a just and equal world, the free market, as envisioned in classical free market economic theory, will be carried out, and it will be orderly, and it will be peaceful, and it will be good. Monday, June 3, 2011 I heard a great speech the other day (I've posted it in my reference library). The speaker, who is also a professor at the University of Wyoming, cleverly used the natural beauty of the state to show what is possible when people take their eyes off politics, and embrace the natural world. The speech began with a statement that a large percentage of federal spending is spent on trivial and inconsequential projects. Then, he showed some of the results of such spending, in terms of our relationship with the natural world. information leading to the conviction of a man accused of stealing $3,000 worth of their family heirloom jewelry. The heirloom jewelry was stolen from the family's home in the 3000 block of 17th Avenue, in Surrey, B.C., last December. Jeremy Douglas Cowan has been charged with five counts of break and enter, three counts of possession of stolen property and one count of possession of property obtained by crime over $5,000. The family made an emotional plea on CBC's St. John's Morning Show on Tuesday, and said they are offering the reward to help catch Cowan. "We're just very fortunate that we had a working alarm system in the house, that we had two dogs," said Teresa Miranda, one of the victim's. "We kept it in the safe. We didn't leave it in our bedroom." Cowan is accused of visiting the family's home in the middle of the night. He is alleged to have broken into the safe and stolen jewelry. (Yvette Brend/CBC) Jade Cowan, Teresa's daughter, said while it's "touch and go" whether police will ultimately arrest Cowan, the family is hoping for an arrest. "It's been an emotional week for us all," she said. The family said they are an "older generation" who have done the time with the RCMP and don't want the system to fail them again, and they want the public to step up and help them find the man who robbed them. Cowan is described as an Indigenous man with a large build. A $10,000 reward was offered for information in the December break-ins at the family home in Surrey, B.C., but the family said the reward only helped catch one man. (Yvette Brend/CBC) Cowan is wanted on five counts of break and enter, three counts of possession of stolen property and one count of possession of property obtained by crime over $5,000. Anyone with information on Cowan's whereabouts is asked to contact Surrey RCMP or Crime Stoppers. Callers can remain anonymous and may be eligible for a cash reward.
