CPS Barcode Wedge is a serial-to-USB communications driver for Windows XP, 2000, NT and 98/ME, as well as the Microsoft.NET WinForms API, and allows Windows applications to access any Serial device. With CPS Barcode Wedge you can: Read all the data from any barcode scanner (RS232) and store it using a log file Check the communication with your barcode scanner Connect any number of RS232 to USB serial scanners Connect any USB to Windows based computers Read Serial data from any serial port and store it using a log file Use any standard serial device as a log file storage and allow a Windows application to access the data Transfer your data from USB-to-Serial or from

USB-to-USB port Use the bar code data to save it in XML or CSV format View the entire Log file using a Database viewer Create your own template of stored data Define the stored barcode format Define a schedule to store your data, and start storing the data automatically when a barcode is found The CPS Barcode Wedge will automatically start to store the data in the log file after a successful transfer to the device, it is also possible to interrupt it manually after the first detection of a barcode, the stored data will appear instantly. The stored data is in plain text files, the format is plain text and you can convert it to any other format using a conversion tool like the one included with the program.
