Cheetah DVD .The Department of Homeland Security's US-VISIT program is supposed to make sure international travelers to the United States are who they say they are. Until now, however, it had been heavily involved in U.S. immigration sweeps targeting undocumented immigrants. Now, however, the nation's top police agency is turning its attention on American citizens – many of whom are simply traveling through the United States, and not planning to stay here. The move is yet another sign of how the Obama administration has been ramping up enforcement of US-VISIT, which collects biometric information – including fingerprints and photos – from travelers and alerts law enforcement if there are any problems. "I think we need to hold everyone accountable," Homeland Security Secretary Janet Napolitano said on "Face the Nation" on Sunday. Napolitano said that so far, the program had been largely successful, in that it has helped capture some dangerous criminals and ensured that people admitted to the country are who they say they are. "We have worked really hard to make the program as beneficial to the security of the United States as it can be," she said. "But there are always opportunities to improve." That's pretty much the flip side of the same problem with US-VISIT: while it is a boon for law enforcement, including finding a single bad apple, it can also be a huge pain for innocent people. According to a recent Washington Post article, the program is responsible for more than 7,000 arrests in the first five months of this year alone, and Napolitano said that the system should be expanded so that it collects both biometric data and some information about a traveler's travel plans, in order to catch people who intend to stay in the United States for months or years at a time. As the Post article makes clear, the number of Americans coming back from vacations, business trips or other short trips each year is much higher than that of undocumented immigrants – meaning that for those Americans, the problem of visa fraud is

"Did you just call me to tell me you got your limo?" "I'm just here to talk to the two of you." "I'll see you guys in the limo." "Bye." "Okay, so, maybe I overreacted a bit." "I'm just not used to seeing the two of you in the same room at the same time, you know." "It's weird." "So, I'm just here to apologize and get on with things." "On with things?" "So, you guys are..." "You guys are together." "We are together." "What?" "She's dating my son's ex-girlfriend." "I'm gonna kill her." "Look, she's just like my best friend." "She's just helping us get through this." "So, maybe there was some messed up, poor judgment, but who's to say that" "Did you just say you're dating my son's ex?" "I am, I am." "Jasmine is my new girl." "That's weird." "Because you're really gorgeous and super sexy." "Well, I like Jasmine." "You have a lovely, lovely smile." "Thank you." "So, I guess I'll see you guys at the engagement party tonight." "Nice to meet you." "Thank you." "Bye." "Don't even bother trying to explain." "Now, she knows." "Hey." "I know it's complicated and you don't want to talk about it, but you have to." "She's dating my son's ex-girlfriend." "I'm gonna kill her." "I just need to know if you're my dad." "I'm your dad." "Then, you have to explain everything." "I explained everything to you." "Papito, you just left out all the stuff about the baby." "So, you don't remember?" "I do remember." "I can't, really, really, really think about that right now." "I'm sorry." "I'm still, you know..." "Are you okay?" "I'm okay." "I just need..." "I just need to just go for a walk." "What?" "That's 3e33713323
