KeyMacro is a simple, fast and effective code generator that enables you to create your own macros, which means that you can apply them on various Windows applications. The user interface is intuitive and easy to use, so creating your own macros won't take too much time. With a simple drag and drop option, the tool allows you to generate a unique piece of code to perform specific tasks. When you generate a macro, a short code will appear on the main window and is ready to be utilized with the basic functions of Microsoft Word. What's more, the program supports various key phrases and allows you to use them to create your own macros. You can either use key phrases to unlock or hide the document, or use them to create macros that will enable you to extract specific information from your documents. KeyMacro was designed to be a complete solution that will help you generate macros and unlock documents in many Windows applications. With this tool, the only limitations you'll have are the ones you set for yourself.

KeyMacro comes with a simple, user-friendly interface and is capable of generating codes for all the Windows applications supported by Windows SDK. The program supports a variety of languages, including C++, Visual Basic, VBScript and Java.

your desired videos among a large database of video content. Using HVS, you can find any video content in a matter of seconds, no matter how old or new it is. The interface is easy to use and offers a list of search results, which means that no browsing is required.

However, the program supports some advanced features that will help you to further customize your search. In case you're planning to create your own search terms, you can select the file type you want to look for. From there, you can modify the way the application searches for videos, and specify various attributes that will help to narrow down your search results. You can also make use of advanced search modes such as phrase, ad text, tag and scene searches. The search results will be saved to the
