This year's game introduces the new Precision Dribbling system, which delivers higher control accuracy and a new Level of Artificial Intelligence (AI) for players at every level. This AI guides players on where and how to use their player-specific tools, including acceleration, back-heel, long passes and more, in order to fulfil their individuality in the game. The new Acceleration system is based on player data and challenges the player in the most efficient way to accelerate between the ball and their nearest opponent. The Acceleration system is also optimized for two new player attributes - power and agility. Players with greater power can move faster over small distances, while players with greater agility can move faster over large distances. The animation at the beginning of the game has also been revised to show both sides of the ball. This creates more urgency in the game, especially in underdogs who have a greater need to perform and take control of the ball. One of the most important and welcome additions to the game this year is the FIFA Ultimate Team 20 card packs. You'll receive 20 FUT 20 Card Packs that feature 10 new cards and 10 over-the-counter cards, along with a pack of FIFA Ultimate Team Medals. Starting with this year's FIFA Ultimate Team 20 card packs and their new card balance, FUT cards will no longer be available in waves. I found that the game itself works really well and is a very solid piece of software. Nevertheless, I noticed quite a few bugs (even though this is FIFA! There's always going to be some bugs) which is surely going to annoy the fan base. First of all, if you're playing online there's some issues with the new setup, the game still takes ages to join, and connection issues are still a pain. There's also a strange bug where I was offered my team to recruit a player which I've already recruited and the only way I've found to get rid of that is to close the game and restart it. The offline single-player also has some bugs. Sometimes your goalkeeper will constantly pass to the striker but when you try to hit the button for that action, it does nothing, for example. I also found that player animations sometimes are a bit unnatural, for example the goalkeeper or a striker running up to the ball has a strange animation where the player is still and the
