“FIFA has always focused on allowing players to express themselves on the field; ‘Express Yourself’ is now embodied in our game engine – we’ve added the sophisticated, physics-driven engine power from ‘FIFA 17’ to deliver authentic player movements,” said Aaron McHardy, senior gameplay producer, EA SPORTS™ FIFA. “We’re working with the largest team of motion capture artists and scientists in the world to create the most complete game in the FIFA franchise history. This time, we really get the feel of how a player would move in the game.” All official matches will feature a pre-match stadium walk, which brings fans the sights and sounds of the stadium and gets them excited for the match. At the beginning of the game, players will have the opportunity to watch a match in real-time and customize the experience through individual camera angles. Players will also have a unique voiceover that helps them better understand what’s happening on the field, giving them the confidence to let loose on the pitch. “To create the ultimate football match in FIFA 22 we needed to enter a more immersive world,” said Jordan Parkes, executive producer, FIFA. “Players can now experience physical sensations and the immediate sense of playing in the game. We were inspired by the completely accurate and realistic simulation of anatomy in the ‘FIFA 17’ engine, and we wanted to take it further.” Be part of the match and experience a wide variety of play styles in FIFA 22 by recruiting a squad full of versatile and varied players. Using ‘build’ and ‘tweak’ options, players can tailor their team to play any style of football they choose. Try a wide or long style of passing, short or long passes, long and short and long and quick or slow runs, short and long, short and quick or long and fast or slow. They will be supported by intelligent AI teammates who make winning decisions on the pitch. The more you play on the training ground, the more the AI will support you in-game. As featured in FIFA 17, the FIFA interactive training tool is integrated into FIFA 22 and will help players develop a team that’s perfect for them. In addition, players can now unlock a player-specific training equipment store, featuring cool gifts that players can use to develop their skills further. EA SPORTS FIFA
