By setting the rendering mode to “stick”, iview can display the protein-ligand complex in an animated stick image format. The CCR5 and maraviroc are colored by chain respectively. The ligand presents a deeper cavity than the CCR5. A series of stable proteins are superposed on the maraviroc to give a stereoscopic image of the drug. This figure can be reproduced at. By setting the rendering mode to “wireframe”, iview can render the protein-ligand complex in the default opaque black-and-white image format. Thus, the presentation is suitable for archiving protein-ligand complexes and for literate and intelligent discussions. This figure can be reproduced at. By setting the rendering mode to “cartoon”, iview can represent protein-ligand complexes using its original cartoon-like image format. By employing the MD/MDI system to “swap” the difference between protein and ligand color, iview shows the chemical binding pattern between these two representative chemical entities. This figure can be reproduced at. [April 13, 2020] Doylestown, Pennsylvania IVIEW Therapeutics Inc., an innovative, clinical-stage biopharmaceutical company committed to becoming a leader in topical drug development with specialization focus on ophthalmology, and otolaryngology, completed a successful pre-IND meeting with FDA to develop IVIEW-1501/1502 (Povidone Iodine in combination of Budesonide Nasal Irrigation and Nasal Spray Compositions) for the treatment [] iview rendering of the CCR5 chemokine receptor-HIV entry inhibitor maraviroc complex [17] (PDB code: 4MBS), with a rendering mode set to “anaglyph”.
