"; echo $sonucurl; } I made a PHP web page for testing the URL in there. You can leave everything black to verify it works. Now for the code in the HTML:

var container = document.getElementById('container'); var url = "index.php"; container.innerHTML = url; My JS code is pretty easy. It gets the URL from PHP and just sets it to the initial HTML. What am I doing wrong here? I also tried putting the entire PHP page between tags and also at the bottom of the HTML, and neither worked. Thanks! A: You could add a php file at the root and have this file use the mod_rewrite to force these requests to go through a PHP file. Why are so many fans of Kanye West thinking about Oprah's book club? Forbes' Lisa Martin is keen to unpack the influencer world and the deep reasons why the so-called golden bullet remains king. There's clearly an aura surrounding the annual read-and-recant formula and a remarkable dominance for one man in particular: Oprah. But while all eyes have been on the ambition and the consistency of Oprah Winfrey's programme,

MUSIC: Track 2 : Rich Phillips Track 3 : Jason McCullough Track 4 : Rich Phillips Track 5 : Rich Phillips About This ContentA professional artist, with a Master Degree in Design and Technology, Rayk Kerstan chose his career early in life. However, he didn't follow it right away, he went to college to study psychology. It was a typical decision that ended in the purest of form. Psychologist was a profession without any place, so he decided to dedicate his life to visual arts. Nowadays, he likes to do three things - draw, play drums, and make music. He currently plays in two bands and makes music for various games. When he's not making music, he's working as a high-resolution 3D artist. See more: Shor & Rothberg Protoghost Shor & Rothberg (Chris Shor) are two Czech fine artists that work together as a duo. While Shor produces classical work using watercolors and acrylic paints, Rothberg is far more dynamic in what he creates. Using digital art and 3D applications, he explores the use of computer technology to create everything from landscapes to abstract designs and even conceptual art. What's new:

Main menu Post navigation Black Ivory For a short time earlier this year an Ancient Very Important Reading Collection was posted on Wattpad. It's an anthology of very old, very real books written about real-life people who at one time lived in our world, but who were so extraordinary they transcended ordinary existence. The following are fictional characters invented by the authors in order to tell their fictional stories. The skills and personality traits of the people in these stories are intended to be representative of accurate historical people just like the ones the authors read. In other words, it's a collection of stories to inspire us all to become extraordinary people. The stories within this anthology include travel documents, and reports of people during the ancient times. It features characters who lived hundreds, or perhaps thousands, of years ago. Black Ivory is the first story. I write this for you. This is for you...the seer, the shapeshifter. Black Ivory New, unmarked, unmarked, unwitnessed new artifact upon an inked journal page. Two human child-size black-faced wooden monkeys as the only objects. What distinguishes it as different from all the others seems to be the light blue silk ribbon attached to each one. The handwriting is different. The first line is written in a language that sounds like American, but not American in the way we can recognize today. There's a mix of it spelling and capitalization to it, but none of us speaks it or understand that language yet. The next paragraph is another language. An ancient language that only a few of us understand. The next words are written in a very old forgotten dialect of ancient American. The next paragraph is again in a language that we don't understand. The next few lines are in a language that's still a mystery to us today. If you speak these languages, you'll understand them. The next paragraph is in an ancient language that's completely lost from our knowledge. An ancient language that only certain people, the ones who know the ancient languages better than the rest, still know. The next paragraph is perfectly translated into English. Bokare I, the seer, the shapeshifter, the destructive spirit, sit on my throne in my tree and watch the sun rise. I sit here today, watching the sun rise for the first time in 80 years to say,
