Smith House and probably dates from the mid to late nineteenth century, is a historic house and barn at 136 Pleasant Valley Road in the town of South Burlingame, Massachusetts. Built about the time the town was incorporated, it is a rare surviving example of an early rural area dwelling. The house is a -story five-bay wood-frame structure with a gable roof, the whole encased in clapboards. Its first floor has two rectangular windows, the second floor a single window, and the roofline has gable, hip, and corner returns. The two-story barn is a typical early 20th-century barn, with a rectangular first floor and an L-shaped second story. The house and barn were listed
