What's New In Presentation Screen Master?

Oxygen Removes Carbon Monoxide Using an Electronic Breathalyzer!  If you purchased Carbon Monoxide Gas Monitor the Carbon Monoxide Gas Monitor works great, but the display is tiny and annoying. This new version is bigger, more noticeable, and takes up less room on your counter top!  For those that do not know that Carbon Monoxide (CO) is a killer, the Carbon Monoxide Gas Monitor is a simple device that will tell you if you have more than .25 parts per million (4.35 ppm) of CO in your house. In other words, if you have any CO in your house, you can either fix it, or leave it alone. If you do not know that CO is a killer, Oxygen is using an electronic air breathalyzer to remove Carbon Monoxide (CO) out of your home. The panel on the monitor looks like a digital breathalyzer and can detect up to 4 parts per million (0.75 ppm) of CO in your house. It will tell you if it found anything and give you a handy warning to prevent an emergency. Carbon Monoxide and the Danger of CO. Carbon Monoxide is a colorless, tasteless, odorless, poisonous gas. It is extremely deadly and can cause headaches, anxiety, dizziness, difficulty in breathing, muscle aches, nausea, vomiting, unconsciousness, death. Sources of Carbon Monoxide: The top 4 sources of CO are: - Gas Stoves, Boilers, Fireplaces and Heaters - Portable Gas and Heaters - Vehicles - Water Heaters - Fuel Air Separators - Gas Range Ovens Carbon Monoxide Removing Products: - CO Detectors - CO Masks - CO Monitors - CO Removers More than 3,000 Americans die each year in house fires. This is not just a problem for families with pets or renters but for families with children as well. In the summer months it is common for children to spend hours outside. Often times they are just chasing each other around the neighborhood. As they run around they start to sweat, especially if the temperature is hot. If they are wearing a CO mask they are less likely to suffer from CO poisoning. How to Detect and Remediate CO CO detectors can not be used alone. If used alone they will not find CO at all. Their entire purpose is to emit a sound which alerts the homeowner to
