KEYMACRO is a macro recorder (packet sniffer) in record mode. It does support capturing a series of screen shots after a command on the mouse button has been pressed, and saves the pictures to disk. These pictures can be used by analyzing later. It also provides the user with the option to capture the content of specific windows of the active application. KEYMACRO's advanced features include comprehensive logging functionality, command history, password storing and input in a variety of formats (including encryption).

Key Features: > Capture of full screen > Capture of a selected window > Fast logging > Command logging > Password logging > Command history > Special text boxes > Unicode support > Output file saving > Import data from the clipboard > Export data to the clipboard > Support for all Windows versions > Easy to use (do not need to learn new commands) > No activation required (keyboard only) > Free trial (30 days) > Command line support > Multiple languages supported (English, German, Russian, Chinese, etc) > Full documentation

In short, Keyboard macro recorder is very easy to use. It will record all the mouse clicks you make on the screen while entering all the commands you want to record. You only need to press the mouse button once to start recording and the keyboard commands will be entered automatically while you are pressing the mouse button. There is no limits to how many commands you can input (and as many times as you want), a configuration file is created when you launch the program and this file will be saved on your computer. So there is no need to remember any commands as you can simply edit the configuration file and reset the commands. Advanced features allow you to save the configuration file on disk, edit it directly from the command line, and import configuration from clipboard. Those features also allow you to edit individual commands and even the order of the commands (or change them completely). Additionally, Keyboard Macro recorder can be used as a packet sniffer. It is very easy to capture and record any kind of traffic on your computer. It will analyze what you record and find some patterns, and then detect this patterns automatically. In the end, Keyboard Macro recorder will tell you which kind of traffic you have captured and how many packets. You can export the information to a text file for a later analysis with a third party analysis tool. Thanks to this advanced feature, you do not need to buy 2edc1e01e8
