Transitions DJ [Mac/Win]

* Stunning Track Visualization * Simply Vast Customization * Sync-Style Loops * Looped Hot Cues * Timelines & Loops * Play & Pause * Crossfader * Pitch Bend The DJ Software that should have been a game Get it: Crossfader; Sync button. The most disappointing element of the entire experience is the Transitions DJ App's inability to sync the tracks. When you place your virtual crossfader on the beat you want to hear, the app simply sets the time of that beat in sync with the current song – not the entire beat. You won't be able to play a song's drums or basslines without hitting the Sync button. This is a major oversight in a program designed to help people who play DJ; but even if that was never a goal, the Sync function should be there by default. An unimpressive DJ app with little value Get it: Track visualizations. You can go to hell and back with the types of visuals that this program offers. Whatever visual looks you get depends on the theme you choose – not an option that's very useful. You could get just a green view, a purple view or whatever you want – just select the right one. But that's it. When the program is called up you get a sterile look, no matter what. That said, there are some visualizations available if you want to change them. But it's not the best option. What's New in This Release: * Updated visualizations * Improved Transitions DJ interface * Minor bug fixes and other improvements. And here's what's changing in this version: * The visuals have been updated and improved. * We've changed the interface and implemented many new features, making it much more convenient to use. * Bugs that might have occurred in previous versions have been fixed. You can now play and record your live set in a custom-built mixer, with a midi control surface and effect processors. * Record and playback from a virtual mixer. * Audio recording with effects. * Multi-track recording with audio inputs and effects. * Play and loop your live set. * Transition seamlessly between tracks. * Retina support! * Record from any device with iOS 10. * Learn to DJ with Pro DJ! * New Mixer with
