USB Agent is a small portable application that was created to provide its users a quick and safe solution for both the USB plug and the USB unplug. The application is able to effectively work with both USB 3.0 and USB 2.0 compliant USB drives and hard drives. On one hand, it's able to offer a tray icon for the user to be able to access all of the features that enable him to perform configuring tasks, such as unplugging or plugging the external drives, selecting which program will be used to perform those operations, and many other tasks that are actually required when accessing USB devices. On the other hand, the main feature of the application is its ability to provide a powerful and configurable configuration file in order to efficiently perform any of the operations that are supported by the application. This configuration file is actually composed of a directory and a file located inside that directory. Users can specify the parameters in the configuration file, such as which drive will be accessed to perform the operations or which program will be used, and then save the file to the USB drive using its internal function. A quick start guide is provided to help users get started with the application. A basic tutorial is also available. MSNBC host Rachel Maddow on Wednesday said House Democrats' subpoena of Special Counsel Robert Mueller is a "huge escalation" of the Mueller probe that could result in President Trump being held in criminal contempt of Congress. The host of "The Rachel Maddow Show" made the comment on the eve of the subpoena being released publicly, which is when members of Congress can subpoena a person for testimony without a judge's approval. "This is big," Maddow said. "This is huge," she added. "If they can subpoena someone, it means that they think that they have an obligation to bring the person in and ask questions, and they think that those questions can't be answered in some other way." The House Judiciary Committee and the House Intelligence Committee have subpoenaed Mueller, as well as his investigator on the case, to appear on Capitol Hill for hearings in September. The Justice Department has opposed the congressional subpoenas, arguing that Mueller's testimony would be a "potentially lengthy or protracted process." The committee has also suggested that Mueller could refuse to testify, something that is not an option for the judiciary committee.
