Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a product transport facility for transporting a product in which the product is transferred on the basis of cooperation between the product and a carrier. 2. Description of the Related Art Various kinds of transport facilities are known in which a product is transferred on the basis of cooperation between the product and a carrier. Among the known kinds of transport facilities, there are ones in which a tape is used as a carrier having, for example, openings along both edges for passage of the product. One example of such a transport facility is shown in FIG. 1. In FIG. 1, reference numeral 1 designates a belt conveyor provided with openings along both edges of a tape 2, which is wound around a belt loop 1a of the belt conveyor 1. The belt loop 1a is a loop formed with a span of the belt 1 having a width substantially equal to the sum of the widths of the tape 2 and an opening 1b made thereon. In this instance, the opening 1b is located at a center of the belt loop 1a. Numerals 3, 3a, 3b, 3c, 4 and 6 respectively denote a bale, an opening of the tape 2, a first carrier, a first guide member, a second guide member and a second carrier. The second carrier 6 is provided at its opposite ends with guide poles 6a, 6a, which are spaced from a second opening 1b. The second guide members 4a, 4b are pivotally supported by the first guide members 3a, 3b at their opposite ends via rotating shafts 3c, 3c with a bearing formed in the first guide member 3a (3b) located at a position intermediate an inner side of the tape 2 and an outer side of the second carrier 6. Further, the first carrier 3 is pivotally supported by the first guide member 3a (3b) at its opposite ends via rotating shafts 3c, 3c with a bearing formed in the first carrier 3. The bale 3 is set in the
