supply and the circuit is completed. this is the circuit you would use to power the heater, and the accompanying controller for it. its basically an encased heater, where the heater is concealed behind a tile and connected to the power supply. the tile is acting as a heatsink to help transfer heat to the walls and into the home when the heater is in use. this is important because in our rv we have a large amount of insulation. so when the heater is not in use, the most heat is lost out the back, and when the heater is in use, we want as much heat as possible to be moved around and into the walls and the rest of the rv. 5ec8ef588b
