Actually, I want to state here that I am relatively happy with the new face and body technology in modern skin tones. The problem is, that again & again (I saw in the movies too) faces and bodies are drawing bad skin tones in the "look", that doesn't look at all like skin. I'm confused to know, what LR designers do with the blending modes when doing that. In the jazzkraut.com, I have observed, that sometimes they get at their faces "a very weird light gradient blended as a linear gradient". And I haven't seen it with skin tones. Their gradients are very strange in colours In addition, I feel forced to have to do masking to stop this. This rarely is visible in a picture, but it really distracts and affects the whole picture. I'm not a good freestyle artist, I only can create realistic, natural, realistic, valuable results. I worked in weddings, and I do not create fake results, just the real venue with fake people. The best way to find out how you can use a new feature could be to Google it and use the results as a starting point. For example: "Save for web and devices". Of course you'll need to know the name of the feature that you want to use, and want an example for that feature. Adobe Photoshop's new Bulk Reorder feature is the first one that lets you reorganize the order of your selected images. Drag-and-drop images to move them up or down. Or select them all, right-click, then hit Bulk Reorder. You can now take full advantage of powerful hardware features of the brand-new iPad Pro by using the new Photoshop Sketch App. "Photoshop Sketch is a powerful new creative app that comes to iPad. Powerful because it seamlessly takes Photoshop's stunningly intelligent and artistic features straight to your fingertips," said Adobe Photoshop product management leader Inwon Park.
