, Dog Man and Monkeys The Legend of Bear-Truck Trucker, Dog Man, and Monkeys is a 2005 American animated comedy film and the twenty-second entry in the Looney Tunes series produced by Warner Bros. Pictures. Directed by John Crawford and animated by Warner Bros. Animation, the film features Bugs Bunny, Daffy Duck, Elmer Fudd and a gang of other cartoon Looney Tunes characters. The Legend of Bear-Truck Trucker was first released direct-to-video in the United States on May 13, 2005, and in the United Kingdom on May 23, 2005. Plot One of the latest mystery tours is about a legendary man named Bear-Truck Trucker (Phil Hartman) who will sell his tours through the mail. He is a calm man who likes to run and listen to the music he records on his stereo, but once he becomes angry, he starts to shout at his tour clients, sending them and him off to a medieval amusement park called Lazy Daze to discover who fed an alligator enough dog food for it to gain twenty pounds. The only problem for the tour occurs when the person he sends gets kidnapped and Daffy is chosen to replace him. Elmer Fudd becomes suspicious and goes to investigate, but he gets caught up when, after being sent to a carnival midway, Bugs attacks him. Meanwhile, at Lazy Daze, a young boy is kidnapped and taken to the cave where the Gumbaz, a group of villains who steal the world's diamond of magic, whose whereabouts is hidden inside a giant scarab beetle. Icky Vek and Big Head (the sting in Little Icky's side caused by the Gumbaz' diabolic forces) demand that an employee named Roach free the beetle to feed the mindless dog with dog food so the beetle can learn their craft. Roach, however, refuses to hurt the dog, along with any other living creature, and the Gumbaz sends Icky and Big Head along with a horde of Lunkers (not to be confused with the Lunkers in The Woody Woodpecker Show) to destroy Roach. They spot Daffy walking down the street, but he fears getting hurt by anyone. The Gumbaz goes on to explain that they stole the magic diamond from the Great Lama of Tibet and were fighting a losing battle against the Monkey Queen of Taurus (a demon who turns demons
