- BusinessSkinForm can help you create and maintain skins for your application. - In addition to the many built-in components, you can use your own or any other resource file (you can also open any standard image file and edit it). - Skin creation is very simple. You need to define the type of skin you need - a normal form, a popup window, a window hint, a drop down menu or any component that includes a picture (that could be used as a window border, a control picture, an icon or anything you wish). Then you select the skin style (a plain button, an icon with a drop down menu, an icon with a menu, an icon with a drop down menu with an arrow and so on). - Once you select the type of skin you need, you can adjust the settings of the image. You can also choose the color, the opacity, the direction, the dimensions (x,y) and even the position on the screen (page, center, top left, top center and so on). - Then you simply drag and drop the components that you need. When you drop a component, it will appear in the form and you can resize, move and rotate it as you wish. - Once you finish, you can save the skin (as an XML file) to use in future as long as you install BusinessSkinForm. You can also rename the skins as you wish and you can easily add a comment to any of them. - You can also export and import skins by dragging them from the skin palette to the XML editor. - BusinessSkinForm allows you to edit components for skins that you have created. - The component editor allows you to edit the components of your skins (add new skins or edit the existing ones) by simply dropping them in the component browser that displays the default components of the skin (in the form of templates). - If you don't want to edit a component, you can view its XML definition. This will show you a template that can be used to create the component in the skin editor. - The form editor is a special editor that allows you to edit your skins (adding a form picture or a component to a form) by simply dragging them to the screen. - After finishing you can save the form (as an XML file) to use in future. You can also use the resources of the form to place your own image or edit the existing one. - You can import and export forms as BusinessSkinForm is an extensive VCL library that packs over 120 components that can come in handy when you are working on applications that feature skin support for hints, menus, forms as well as many standard controls (navigator, grid, ctrl grid, edit, memo, combo box, list box, lookup controls, so on and so forth). Even though it includes dozens of skins, Ribbon UI controls and application menus, you should bear in mind that the tool also comes with an editor that allows you to create the exact skins you want. The feature can be useful for developers who want to use a certain skin or menu as their trademark. It is important to note that the application requires you to install Delphi 5-Berlin or C++ 5-Berlin for installing any component that it includes in the database or you create yourself. Nevertheless, the setup for the components is as simple as it gets and entails choosing the installation package and then selecting the correct BPL file to be installed. As far as the skin creation process it concerned, it usually implies following several steps, depending on whether you want to include a form info, popup window or hint window. Once you gather the bitmap images and access the setup section, you should know that BusinessSkinForm allows you to add metadata to your skins, such as author name, email, URL and comments, if any.

3. Several Advanced Functions One of the interesting features of this component is that it offers several advanced functions. Some are custom control creators, access to control designers, creation of skins, different types of list boxes and so on. What is good and bad in BusinessSkinForm?
