(KGTV) -- San Diego Police Department officials say they've busted the call-girl ring that was allegedly operating out of a San Diego City Beach restaurant. Police say there were well over 20 women who were deceived and victims of sex trafficking in what appears to have been a call-girl ring. The women were all employed by a pimp - who appeared to be a Spanish-speaking man - at a restaurant located at 4623 Oceanside Dr. in San Diego. "The women were solicited to come to this location to work as call girls, if they did so, that person would pay a monthly fee," San Diego Police Lt. Scott Crow said. The alleged pimp and the victims would meet at the restaurant, which is located near the intersection of Oceanside Drive and Oceanside Boulevard, and "they would complete a background check and then they would come back and arrange to go meet with their clients. The pimp would provide the women with a ride to their clients." During the course of the investigation, police identified 21 victims in the case. Those victims ranged in age from 18 to 22 and were from all over the U.S. while the pimp had established a base in San Diego. "It is very rare for sexual assault cases where the victims are foreign nationals but in this particular case, this is a very difficult case because of what occurred and because of the level of sophistication on
