although reading books on a pocket pc will not put you out $400, we have to admit that it is very cool to be able to read a book right out of the box. it would be even cooler if you could do this on a digital book reader that you already had in your pocket, such as a pda, smart phone, or other device. despite all the advantages, the real reason for purchasing an ipod is more than just keeping in touch with friends. it's the music player. the classic has a built-in speaker and microphone. you can connect a separate stereo or a headset to the ipod, or use your own pair of headphones. here is a great idea from steve jobs (who, by the way, has a vision impairment) about how the ipod can be utilized to help people with low vision stay connected with friends and family: the "social" aspect of the ipod. with the software that comes with the ipod, you can use the ipod as a telephone, too. with a little extra

software, you can use the ipod as a video player. we can't wait until the next generation of ipods to see what new applications are developed. the future is looking really, really good for those with vision impairments, like steve jobs! we are both huge fans of the ipod. we are also huge fans of ipods so you can be sure that we speak with passion and knowledge about the ipod. we will tell you about its capabilities and point out its good and bad features. but we will also make sure that you have all the information you need to make the decision that is best for you. when you are ready to make that decision, just make sure you buy the right ipod. in summary, the ipod is a great thing. it connects you to people, it is a portable device that you can use to show your personality, it has a good battery
