“This game I genuinely can not put down. The writing and story is perfectly pitched and the gameplay is just a joy to play.” “This game has it all, well-crafted, immersive story, enchanting world and gameplay, it's a must play game this year.” “Glorious, enchanting, enchanting game!” “I find myself invested in the story, I find myself wanting to go to bed at night and see what will happen next. It's a real great game.” “An absolute gem of a game in my eyes. It is very well-written and looks fantastic.” “It's an RPG, you know! There is always a lot of expectation when it's announced that someone gets to present an RPG on the Wii. Maybe it's the story, the over-the-top presentation, or the player input. Just when you start to doubt it, you actually play a few hours and fall into it. That's how it's not a surprise that it's the best RPG for Wii this year, and probably my favourite of all time.” “After playing the game a number of times, I can say that it's certainly a dream come true for any fan of RPG. Graphically, the game is on par with the very best Nintendo has to offer. The user interface is easily the best for the home console. It's got beautiful writing and incredibly detailed graphics. The Gameplay is a true RPG experience. If you're a fan of RPGs, than this game is one you shouldn't miss out on! Since you're investing more money than ever in this game, there are some great promotions to consider. So if you're into the story, look at GameFly's deal. You get 50% off every month for 12 months. You'll get over 300 hours for $29.99. That's $25.99 a month. The price, is just the price. The gameplay is story-driven. But despite all of this, the game is still about fighting those who oppose you. You'll be fighting an army of slavers, an army of sorcerer, and even a giant beast. More than anything else though, you'll be fighting powerful enemies who are bff6bb2d33

Q: How to get a large number without precision issues? I am trying to get a large number without losing precision, like this: `import random start = random.randint(0, 1000000) print(start)` Then, I'm just going to increment it by 15. `start = start + 15` The end result should be 1725. After this, I just want to get it converted to a string. But then, I'm running into this problem. `str(start)` How can I get this number to a string without losing precision? A: I assume you want the number in a decimal form. `str(start)` # this will convert your int to a str since it is greater than 32 characters `str(start)` # the thing is that `str(...).rjust(16)` is better but you should use decimal instead `print(start.quantize(decimal('.0000'), rounding=ROUND_DOWN))` # get your number rounded to 4 decimal digits
