Purdue police arrested a 22-year-old suspect on Nov. 15 in connection to the Jan. 6 shooting, which occurred in the 16000 block of Blodgett Drive on the west side of the Purdue campus. The suspect has been charged with felony battery, according to the release. Police have yet to release further details in the case. The victim, whose age was not released, suffered non-life threatening injuries as a result of the shooting, according to the release. Students who were in the area during the shooting provided police with a description of the suspect and the car used in the shooting. The suspect was arrested approximately 15 minutes after the shooting, police

Download Hacking Software Read Tutorial and Usage.Q: wordpress - public ip address of current_user is wrong on remote server I have developed a wordpress plugin that I am using to pull some information from the database on a remote server that is accessible via my network. When I run the plugin locally, the public ip address of the current_user returns a value different than when run on the remote server. For instance, when I use it on my local machine, the value returned is "192.168.1.210". This is fine. But when I am using it on the remote machine the value returned is "192.168.1.10". It seems to me that on the remote machine the value of 'current_user' is being set to the value of the current user on that machine, rather than the user that is using my plugin on that server. How can I have the public ip address for the current_user on the remote machine reflect the actual user that is using my plugin? A: When you are running the plugin in your local environment, there is no remote user. When you are running it on a remote machine, the remote user

Pam Martens: April 30, 2013 One of my friends on Facebook noted, "Wow, I liked this article! There are a lot of things wrong with the health care reforms, and I agree with most of them. But to suggest that health care reform is somehow not necessary or in the best interest of the nation – something I can't agree with – is simply offensive." My friend is correct to point out that there are flaws in the proposed legislation, and the reforms will do more harm than good. This is particularly true if the plans push individual states to create and share more information about their health care delivery systems. This is why it is important that the public make their voices heard on health care reform. If you live in one of the states that are considering pushing some sort of health care reform, you have the opportunity to speak out. As April 4 approaches, state legislators across the country will convene in Raleigh to discuss the changes they are willing to consider. The good news is that several state legislators are opposed to any type of health care reform. Opposition to Changes in Health Care Delivery Systems The Patient Protection and Affordable Care Act (PPACA) would change the delivery of health care by, among other things, allowing for: open enrollment for individuals to purchase health insurance by establishing a public health insurance exchange expansion of Medicaid to cover individuals earning up to 133% of the federal poverty level an end to employer and union mandates to provide health care
