The goal of this project is to provide a better understanding of the psychosocial aspects of adolescent substance use, with special reference to the roles of parents, peers, and teachers. The central focus is in the family, particularly in the relationships among parents, children, and adolescents. The project includes 12 independent research papers on issues ranging from the early onset of drug use to the role of drugs in the family, from the impact of the family on the development of antisocial tendencies in adolescents to the influence of the family on risk-taking behavior and adolescent smoking. The project also includes a number of studies on the links between parental factors and problem behavior in adolescents, particularly in regard to substance abuse. These include studies examining family stability and adolescence and studies on the impact of the father on adolescent substance use.MELBOURNE has added Sam Frost to its list of recruits as the Demons continue preparations for next season, filling the void left by recruits Alex Neal-Bullen and Bayley Fritsch. Frost was an obvious choice after the Demons drafted the 20-year-old with pick No.10 in the NAB AFL Draft. The forward/midfielder joined the club after signing a three-year contract and has worked with VFL squad colleagues Tom Murphy and Charlie Spargo since his arrival. Frost also has coach's permission to train with the club at Simonds Stadium early in the mornings in preparation for the coming season. Murphy will not be at the club for the first few weeks of the pre-season as he recovers from a shoulder injury he suffered last season. "We're rapt to have him," senior coach Simon Goodwin said. "There's been a lot of great work done with him and he's ticked a lot of the boxes in terms of what he can do. "We've really worked him hard in relation to his fitness and that's going to take a little bit of time, but we're really pleased with the work he's done." Goodwin also confirmed the Demons would have a new backline partner in star recruit Tom McDonald. "'Toffo' McDonald will play there for us, so the conundrum is whether or not he'll play on the half-back flank or back-up defensive half-back. "We'll wait to see. He's played one-way for a long period of time, so there's no reason why he can't play both sides of

Q: How can I find the netfilter table name on an interface? I'm trying to investigate how to change the interface name on an interface on some Linux machines. I believe, I'm on a RHEL 6 server and I want to change the interface name from eth0 to eth1. Looking in /proc/net/dev, I only see: eth0 Link encap:Ethernet HWaddr a2:bd:e8:28:d3:ed inet addr:192.168.1.200 Bcast:192.168.1.255 Mask:255.255.255.0 inet6 addr: fe80::a2:bdff:fe28:d3ed/64 Scope:Link UP BROADCAST RUNNING MULTICAST MTU:1500 Metric:1 RX packets:351303 errors:0 dropped:0 overruns:0 frame:0 TX packets:121232 errors:0 dropped:0 overruns:0 carrier:0 collisions:0 txqueuelen:1000 RX bytes:907213391 (907.2 MB) TX bytes:55789952 (557.8 MB) Any idea how I can get the eth1 interface name? It looks like it's not /etc/sysconfig/network (or is it?), there is some other global configuration like inet.conf, I'm not familiar with it, since I'm not a linux sys admin. I've tried: $ netstat -n Kernel IP routing table Destination Gateway Genmask Flags MSS Window irtt Iface default 10.3.0.1 0.0.0.0 UG 0 0 0
