I want to boot on external. i have a scsi to ide converter. It works to me. i have exe itunes on my hard drive (mounted in wine). I tried to make it works from scsi (winbond) to ide (apple internal) using a converter but failed and wondered if this can be done by norton ghost or by anything else. I have a good backup but would like a cheap solution. I have a one disk (32GB) eSATA sdb hard drive. I am currently in windows and i want to boot os x. I have a PC that is connected to the same PC to do the job. My question is how to make the PC be the target of norton ghost and still have read access to sdb disk? Or is it better to first move sdb to PC with norton ghost then to boot os x? Norton Ghost provides you a free version (Start-up & Run tool) to backup your Windows operating systems. The tool can be used as per the following to get the full version. Can you please let me know the step by step process for transferring mobiles from Nortons ghost to mac, I have a phone that can connect to computer and is detected but I cannot get any option to backup or transfer.
