All in all, Forecaster4 is a very useful application that you should check out especially if you're planning your retirement. ----- Makes an exact forecast of your future income and expenses without any guesswork. ----- Hi, I'm using Forecaster4 to try out some of the ideas and problems you have raised about building a life plan for my parents who are in their 50s. I find the application useful and easy to use. It is good to see that I can use it without any prior experience of how to use it. I do have a question for you though. When I do some of the "What if" simulations, it doesn't produce the results that I expected. I did some "What if" simulations to see what would happen if my parents were to decide to work for another 15 years, if they were to retire at a lower age and if they would take more pension than they have now. It didn't produce the results I expected. It seems that I get a stable result if I have them retire at 65, when I expected them to
