STORY OF THE GAME You will meet and get to know a mystery man who just lost his memory after an accident. It's up to you to restore his memories and save the world and his sister. To do that you will go around the world to find the picture that completes the story. The pictures are just as important as the story, they need to be found at a precise order because each picture has an impact over the story and the characters. You will have to be creative and smart to do that, as the environment you're in will change, the story will change, the encounters will change, the characters will change and so you will have to test all your skills to reach each picture. The game will have 2, 3 or 4 different endings depending on the thing you do. WHO AM I? Your hero is a mystery man who just lost his memory after an accident. He's got a sister, his dog and the annoying bear that he rescued. You will have to choose the right words for him to remember his past and later restore the world. Note: your dog can't really talk, so don't worry he will guide you to each picture, he will move his head, move the camera around and show you the path to reach the picture. c9d1549cdd

- (2014) Free to play? I am not too familiar with the distinction between free to play and free to play with a premium item. In my opinion (a pretty low-level opinion) and contrary to the posts here, Dungeon Defenders II is not a free to play title. I think it is more like Dota 2 where you need to buy a premium item to get in game gold and as such spend $15 on the first month. I have looked on the Steam description but cannot find a clear indication that this is free to play. Has anyone else played DDII? You can buy gold from the in-game store with 3 g of real cash. Comment To be clear I am not playing or thinking of playing DDII. I have been around the different Wikis or online fan communities for other games like League of Legends. I am talking about the distinction between a free to play (F2P) and a free to play with premium item (FTP). As I am not familiar with that boundary with respect to DDII I would be grateful for a short explanation. Comment Surprisingly DD2 is a freemium game. You have to make 2 characters, but you have to pay for ONE. The premium item is called a Hero - it costs 30 g per hero for 3 days. Each hero also unlocks an equivalent amount of in-game gold each day. Comment Surprisingly DD2 is a freemium game. You have to make 2 characters, but you have to pay for ONE.
