Field of the Invention The present invention relates to a sensor mounting structure that is mounted on a vehicle body and detects an abnormal condition of the vehicle. 2. Description of the Related Art A Japanese Patent Application First Publication No. 2003-341564 published on Dec. 4, 2003 exemplifies a sensor mounting structure mounted on a vehicle body. A seat cushion frame of the seat is fixed on a vehicle body via a seat cushion and a seat back having seat cushion frames is fixed on the seat cushion frame. A sensor mounting portion on which a sensor is installed is attached to a seat back frame. A lower end portion of the seat cushion frame is fixed to the vehicle body and an upper end portion of the seat cushion frame is attached to an upper end portion of the seat back frame by a clip. As shown in FIGS. 13 and 14, in the sensor mounting structure disclosed in the related art, the clip 56 is provided at a lower end portion of the seat cushion frame 52, and a bolt 57 is inserted into the clip 56 and extended in a forward and rearward direction. The upper end portion of the seat cushion frame 52 is fixed to the seat back frame 51 by driving the bolt 57 into an end portion of the seat back frame 51, and hence the seat back frame 51 is fixed on the seat cushion frame 52. The above-described sensor mounting structure is provided at an upper surface portion of the seat back frame 51, and hence it is impossible to confirm that the sensor is properly mounted on the seat back frame 51. Particularly, in the event of a collision of the vehicle, a possibility of the sensor not being mounted on the seat back frame 51 is increased. When James Barat was five, he was taken to d0c515b9f4
