CopyCat is a little program to copy CD/DVD-media. It can ignore some errors or remove them. This means that you can easily copy data from CDs/DVDs that are damaged or from scratched media without getting a file that cannot be played. CopyCat is similar to DVD::Rip, but CopyCat works directly on the disc without needing to convert the original DVD files to another format. It has all the features of DVD::Rip, but it has a different licence: it is freeware. There is a small amount of system resources used, which means that you don't need a fast computer for copying data from a disc. I tried a test with a scratched DVD. The test copy used about 30% of my machine's CPU and memory, but I was able to copy all the data successfully. I think this is because the original DVD data is written as many small files and CopyCat can skip the bad sectors. CopyCat does a great job of scanning the DVD and letting you know if there is a problem in the process. If there is a problem, you can start over again. There is also a free trial available on the site. There are a few settings you can set when you start up the program. You can set the amount of time you would like to try reading a chunk of data from a DVD. You can also set the amount of kilobytes per chunk to read. There are also some other settings that you can set at the Preferences option. There are also two DVD tools available with CopyCat. They are included in the program package. They are the disk extractor, which helps you extract files from a DVD, and the Video to DVD converter, which will help you convert a video file to a DVD playable disc. I am a long time user of DVD Ripper Pro. I used to use the DVD Ripper Pro 6 and 7. With the recent updates of the dvd ripper pro, i havent been able to use the applications. After installation of copycat pro, i tried the software but it wont let me create or save my desired settings. And it doesnt show my settings in the preferences dialog box. Its not showing any information about the pro and its not giving me the option to try it for free. I would like to know if this free version of dvd ripper pro is actually the latest one or not.

Q: Format string parameter to return any value I have a querystring parameter that contains a string value of 4 digits. I need the parameter to accept values up to "999999999". Is there a way I can define this so that if the parameter has a value of 5 or greater, it returns "There was an error."? Here is my code: if (TryUpdateModel(this.Request.QueryString, new List())) { string error = "There was an error"; if (string.IsNullOrEmpty(Request.QueryString["ddlWidgets"])) { error = "Please select a widget"; } else { var widget = (from u in this.GetWidgets() where u.WIDGET_ID == Convert.ToInt32(Request.QueryString["ddlWidgets"]) select u).FirstOrDefault(); var widgetUser = (from u in this.GetWidgets() where u.WIDGET_ID == Convert.ToInt32(Request.QueryString["ddlWidgets"]) select u).FirstOrDefault(); var u = new User { WIDGET_ID = widget.WIDGET_ID,
