there's no denying that ubuntu is the most popular linux distro today. whether you're a newbie, an old hand, or somewhere in between, you can find support for ubuntu on the internet and that makes it easy for users to get the answers to any linux questions they may have. ubuntu is also very easy to use and comes with the most applications bundled out of any other linux distro and that includes many programs for video, music, and image editing. its popularity is very well deserved. ubuntu is a good distro for anyone and you may just find yourself spending more time using it than any other distro. if you're looking for a linux distro that will give you the most out of your hardware, then you should try arch linux. its relatively new compared to other linux distros but its popularity is growing by the day. unlike most linux distros, arch is not based on a stable software package manager such as yum or apt-get but on its own pacman package manager. a pacman package is basically a binary file that contains all the instructions needed to install a piece of software. the main reason why the ubuntu name is so widely used is because of its popularity with newcomers. that's because most distros now have a graphical user interface, something that ubuntu pioneered many years ago. in fact, ubuntu has been so popular that many people now have ubuntu-based distros on their computers with almost all other distros being ubuntu derivatives. ubuntu is a good distro for the newbie and can be installed on older hardware, as long as you have a fast internet connection to help you install everything. for that reason, ubuntu is a popular choice for those who want to build their own servers but have never used linux before.
