shirtWhen a microbiological challenge was first proposed to me, it seemed like the perfect opportunity to share my love of DIY with the world. It's a challenge to not only share my adventure with you but the process I took to get my craft beer garden off the ground. I learned how to build a custom potting soil mix (easier than you think) and how to make my own beer garden (even easier than you think) with a friend from Florida. Of course, beer gardens are most successful in the summer so we make ours work for us. Now that you're familiar with how to make a craft beer garden I'm excited to share the many tips and tricks I've learned along the way. There's no such thing as a simple craft beer garden. Everything can be a challenge so these are the things I have to think about every day, especially in the heat of the Summer. If you're just getting your feet wet in the backyard DIY water garden world and you're afraid you won't be able to handle the heat, don't worry! Read on and I'll help you escape the unbearable heat. I learned about DIY water gardens from a friend of a friend in the Chicago suburbs. She is a busy mom of two so she works from home. She told me about how she and her husband built a unique backyard to entertain their young children. They love making things themselves, anything from repurposed projects to outdoor kid play structures to sheds. They ran across her DIY sprinkler system post and told me all about it. It inspired me to make my own. My husband and I love to entertain but our backyard is small so we don't have the space for a sprinkler system. The first time I made my own sprinkler system I was amazed at how easy it was to make a water garden in our front yard. It's like having a little paradise in the middle of the Central Illinois winter. Before we make our own craft beer garden, here are 5 tips for every homeowner to keep in mind. 1. Know Your
