(Maryovel) PRODUCT DESIGN: GRASSHOPPER Ask HN: Is there an email provider with a good privacy policy? - pooky123 Hey HN,I want to switch to a mail provider with a good privacy policy that's not based in the US. Their privacy policy is vague at best and I'm not having much luck finding out more details. Any suggestions? ===== grzm What is it you want to know about a privacy policy? Do you want to know specifics? The general information? What is confusing about it? What would you like to know more about? ~~~ pooky123 yes. I want to know what they do with my data and if there's any guarantees with this provider, things like this [0]. [0]: [policy.com/]( ~~~ grzm You can find the IP address of the people who are running the service. A pretty standard practice. It provides you with their physical location, and "People, places, things, and activities" to determine what they're doing with your data. Is there anything else that is troubling? ~~~ pooky123 Does this falls into the broad category of things I don't want my data to be used for purposes other than what's in the privacy policy? I don't think this is that much of a concern as I just want to know what a provider is doing with my data, not what I'm allowed to do with it. ~~~ grzm Not sure if you're asking this, but what do you want them to do with your data besides what they say they'll do in the privacy policy?
