[Evaluation of intensity of fall risk among the elderly]. The objective of this study was to evaluate the effectiveness of a fall prevention program for the elderly in a post-hospitalization unit. Subjects were 81 patients with a mean age of 86.9 (SD = 5.4) years admitted to a post-hospitalization unit for the elderly for one month. They were taught to perform two physical therapy activities: ankle posture control (static exercise) and the optimal gait patterns (dynamic exercise) three times per week over the two-month period. The number of patients with falls before and after the intervention was compared. The impact of the fall prevention program on the fall rate was evaluated by comparing the fall rate before and after the intervention. The number of patients who fell after the program was significantly decreased from 27 patients to 2 patients (p < 0.05).
