Possible to catch EOFError in python? I have some code

where I'm reading in a file and every time I try to read, it's failing. The code looks

```
like this: infile =
open(infilepath, "r")

infile.read(1) infile.close()

This is for file paths that are on a remote file server, and I'm trying to read a range of bytes, but a lot of the files start with binary data and even though I'm reading a byte at a time, sometimes I don't get the end of the line character. I'm trying to read up to the end of the line. The

OS Error I get is this:
socket.error: [Errno 24] Too many open files I'm not sure what I can do to handle this error other than just continue. What's the best way to handle this kind of error? I've also tried the try and except clauses, but this way I got a TypeError
stating that 3da54e8ca3
