The United States prepares to send its most combat-ready armored brigade to the Middle East in the past half century, according to reports. The 1st Armored Brigade Combat Team (ABCT) is expected to be the first unit to be sent to the area, according to Defense One. Earlier this year, the Pentagon released its annual report on U.S. military force posture in Europe, which states that the 1st ABCT is "preparing for a rotational deployment of up to one year to Poland in the coming year," the military website reported. The Army's brigade is likely to head towards Poland in 2020, according to the report. The unit has been preparing for deployment in Poland for at least two years, with the unit's training occurring in the United States, according to The Associated Press. The AP reports that the 1st ABCT has "been nicknamed 'Train. Move. 595f342e71
